

PROFILE

German Association of Biotechnology Industries (DIB)

The German Association of Biotechnology Industries (DIB) is the biotechnology branch of the Association of the German Chemical Industry (VCI), the VCI sector groups and the VCI sector associations.

DIB represents the political-economic interests of companies which use biotechnological methods and, in this manner, strengthen sustainable growth and the international competitiveness of biotechnology in Germany. 10 associations are also members of DIB. Thus, the DIB members stand for over 90 percent of the German market for biotechnology products such as polymers, plastics, fine and specialty chemicals, enzymes, pharmaceuticals, diagnostics, animal health products, personal care products, detergents, animal feeds, foodstuffs, renewables and derived products.

Our Role

- ◆ We represent the interests of our members vis-à-vis politicians, public administrations, media and the general public, both nationally and internationally
- ◆ We advocate for reliable and internationally competitive framework conditions for the biotechnology industry.
- ◆ We contribute to further strengthening Germany as an industry location.

Our Member Companies

Eligible for DIB membership are member companies of VCI and of the VCI sector associations which are engaged in research or production, drive forward developments or render services using biotechnological methods.

DIB is a member of the European biotechnology association EuropaBio and appoints one member to the Board of the National Associations Council. EuropaBio
